Office Of The Governor

WHEREAS, Through great achievements of medical science, the donation of organs--such as kidney, cornea, skin, liver, heart, pancreas, and others--can save or improve the lives of many who are suffering; and,

WHEREAS, In response to the needs of South Dakota citizens, our South Dakota hospitals act in cooperation with organ transplant centers throughout the region and nation; and,

WHEREAS, Greater public awareness of organ donation procedures is needed so as to enable many potential South Dakota organ donors to leave this gift of life to others; and,

WHEREAS, For every patient who receives a transplant, there is another patient on the waiting list; and,

WHEREAS, The donation of organs suggests, to both the donor and his or her loved ones, the transfer of life rather than the ending of life:
